PRESSURE of other matters of more immediate importance has prevented our hitherto noticing the change which has been introduced in our local Government, by the return to his position as Registrar-General, and we understand that Mr. Tonnochy, on his return from a short leave of absence, will again take the post of assistant Harbour-Master, which has latterly been held by Mr. LISTER, who goes home on leave. Of the Hon. Mr. Smith's conduct of the duties of Colonial-Secretary, we have already had occasion to speak at some length, and as it was necessary to call attention to some points in which, in the public estimation, he failed, it is but fair to notice those in regard to which he has sucwith untiring energy, and if we pass over one or two cases in which he fell into error, he deserves credit for having been able to conduct the affairs of the most important office next to that of the Governor himself, in a satisfactory manner, under circumstances of no small difficulty, that is, holding an acting appointment, and being under a Governor new to the Colony. Such a position must of necessity demand considerable tact, and, though the public by no means agreed with the policy which the Hon. Mr. Tonnochy adopted the wise course of referring all important requarters, and on more than one occasion succeeded by this means in preventing complicated questions, which would certainly As a rule, the REGISTRAE-GENERAL should consider himself strictly as a medium between the natives and the Government, and refuse to take action for them, in, any matters out this course be carefully adopted, the REGIS-TRAR-GENERAL-may become a useful medium for dealing with the Chineso population, but should this sound basis of action be in any to become the means of enabling the Chinese | Charged his rice. The evidence in the case has at last closed. early in 1854 he sailed from New York in a Norwegian ship called the Helvotia, but which proy, which had picked up the defendant at sea. A witness was called from the Custom-house at New Oricans to show that there was only one sailing vessel called the Osprey at New Orleans. during the year 1853, and that was a British ship, and that there was no Helvetia at that port, except in 1851; and other evidence was given to show that this yeasel continued under that name, and afterward sailed between New it was strengously objected to on the part of the defendant, and a lengthened argument upon it ensued, it was admitted in evidence as a copy of a public document, and according to it there York :and found no trace of a change of the hame of dries; 2 cases Lanquered ware. barrister was called to prove that by American Colongs, 224,912 lbs. law such a change was not allowable, and that an American registry of a foreign vessel was not allowable, except by special Act of Congress. On LONDON. It was further elicited by one of the jury that the crew were 28 in number, whereas Line had ! stated there were 15. Evidence was then given to show that the New Bedford Osprey was a whaler, and between 1811 and 1854 was engaged on a whaling voyage, and never on me near Bio.

This evidence was objected to on the pert of On New York. the defendant, on the ground that the Coprey sworn to by I vie was not from New Bedford but from New York. The Court answered that | On Oalcurra. -Bank, Salays' sight 2194 the defendant and distinctly in court told his ON SHANGHAL. counsel that the Osprey which picked him up was a New Bedford Osprey, and his counsel: upon this had stated that the fact was so, and formal proof of this was given. And the Lord sequence of this the prosecution had sent out bad never seen bim, and had never picked up acquainted with Melbourne was called to con- per share discount. the Belgian steamer from Ostend, in which Luie had sworn he came over to London on stated that, to the best of his belief, no such man came from Ostend at that time; and that he ing; and further, that he had searched the Ostend by the police, and found no person of in confirmation of this, and then it was anfinally closed. An application was then made rebutting evidence, and in support of the application an affidavit of Luie was offered, but was at once rejected by the Court, as he could not, they said, confirm his own evidence. An affidavit of Mr. Whalley was likewise offered, but as the Court did not think that it would at all contradict the positive evidence adduced, especially the official documents, this also was rejected. It was then arged that evidence could be adduced to confirm the evidence of Luie on one particular point, as to the spot where Custom house officers boarded ships off Staten. Taling ; but the Court said this would be quite. colliteral and wholly immaterial, as the real point was whether vessels could be loaded there at all, which witnesses had proved to be physically impossible at the time in question, and one of the jury intimated that this, in their part of the case. The counsel for the defence were not, however, prepared, with any evidence to show that vessels ever leaded there at the time stated by Luie, in the winter of 1853-4 and so, the Court said, there was no ground for the application, and, accordingly, at their next sitting the defendant's counsel will commence his address to the jury upon the evidence for the defence. Immediately after the adjournment some sensation was caused in court by something being said as to some charge against Latie, and two persons, it was said, identified him in court; but what the charge was did not appear, and though a letter, which had just been received, containing certain statements as: to the witness, was handed up to the Court, against Luic might do so in the ordinary way. 131st Day.—1st December. This proved the most exciting and important day during the whole of this protracted trial. We mentioned at the end of our report of Friday, when the evidence closed, a scene which occurred in court, owing, it was said, to the presence of some persons to "identify" Luie on some charge. One of the clerks of the Treasury, receiving a statement from a mercautile gentleman in the city, desired to take tice PAUNCEFOTE. instant action upon it, and to-detain Luie for that purpose, but the counsel for the prosecution, taken by surprise, were not prepared at the moment to make an application, and, though they gave notice on Saturday of an intention to call some evidence on the matter, they did not to-day propose to do so, until, in consequence of a violent complaint made by Dr. Kenealy of "contempt of Court," in an attempt to poison the minds of the jury by getting up such a scene in their presence, the counsel for the presecution at once proposed to produce the witnesses to prove the charge against Luie, and although the application was then resisted by Dr. Kencaly, the Court said it was then too late, as, after he had made such a charge, it must be open to the prosecution to meet it, and moreover, it would be very material to the onsu to prove that Luis had been in this country long before the time when be swore that he arrived in this country-that is, on the 5th of July last. An affidavit on the part of Luie was read in support of Dr. Kenenly's complaint as to the scene of Friday, in which affidavit a statement had been inserted locality, Hollywood Road. that "the evidence he had given was true." The Lord Chief-Justice reproduted the insertion of the statement in the affidavit as a very improper attempt to take advantage of the opportunity in order to introduce such an assertain on the part of Luie. Mr. Whalley, M.P., who was to-day, as on Friday and Thursday, sitting in court behind Dr. Kenealy, hereupon rose, and avowed that he had inserted the statement and desired to justify himself, but he was sternly desired by the Lord Obief-Justice to sit down. The witnesses were then called. A shipbroker in the city and four of his clerks testified that in March last Luis professed to charter to them a vessel, of which he said he was master, but the name of which they could anot find on the lists, which he explained by saying that it had changed its name. It was, he said, lying at a port in Cornwall, and on Bigning the charter be asked for a loan of £20. But on telegraphing to Lloyd's agent there, it was found that there was no such ship there, and the broker, after ascertaining where Linio lodged, which, it was said, was at Houses, &c. Water and Gas laid on. low coffee liouse in the Whitechapelrond, threatened to give him in charge for trying to obtain money under false protences. They did not see him again to speak to till seeing his photograph in a shop they recognized it, and _____ when they came to see him they recognized the _____ man himself as the person they had the business with. This evidence having been given, Luie was recalled, and swore that he had never seen any of the witnesses, and had never been in London before the 5th of June, except that in May be had landed at Liverpool in the C.roassia, from New York, and had passed through by rail to Folkestone, and had thence embarked for Oatend, whence, he said, he came back on the 5th of June in the steamer, the captain of which has been called to deny it. Although reminded by the Lord Chieftime, at reasonable terms. Justice that there is no line of steamers from Folkestone to Ustend, he persisted in it that Folkestone was the port, and also that be took a "through ticket" from Liverpool to Folkestone. After this evidence the Lord Chief-Justice, after consulting his brethern, said the Court felt in incumbent upon them to hold line to bail to unswer a charge tf 1671 Hongkong, Shanghui, Cologne (Germany.) of perjury, in case the jury should ultimately disbelieve his testimony, and Mr. Whalloy thereupon offered to be his bail. Dr. Kencaly then desired an adjournment to enable his client to make inquiries into the evidence thus given, and endeavour to obtain some evidence to contradict the new witnesses or to confirm Luie; but the Court, though they offered to let in any such evidence if it could be obtained, declined

Extracts. EPITAPH ON A DISTINGUISHED POLITICAL CHARACTER: Here lies poor Dizzy, In life so busy With intrigue and riot. 'And now so quietly He wrote Grey a letter His malico revealing; It might have been better. In tone, ta te, and feeling. Then he stuck like a leech, In a "violent" speech, To each word of that letter, -Which in ght have be a better. When in office he "plunder'd," When out of it thunder'd; -And frequently "blunder'd," And nobody wonder'd; For he ne'er was exact As to matters of fact, Or in giving a lift To the fame of Dean Swift. As a writer he over Was bitter and olever Most in Satire, abounding. And motives confounding. When Dizzy died, Nobody cried: And there's nobady weening Where Dixxy lies sleeping. -Speciator.

FAMILIAR PHRASES The term, " Masterly inactivity," originated with James Mackintosh. "God tempers | the bucket of water in the sea nearly to the the wind to the shorn lamb," which everybody who didn't suppose it was in the Bible, credited to Sterne, was stolen by him from George Herbert, who translated it from the French of Henry Estienne. "The cup that cheers but not inebriates," was "conveyed" by Cowper from Bishop Bookly in his "Siris." Wordsworth's. "The child is father of the man," is traced from him to Milton, and from | the net; and the Professor says, in his marra-Milton to Sir Thomas Moore. "Like angels tive of the occurrence, that he imagined that visits, few and for between," is the offspring be naw on one of the pieces containing an of an "Hook"—it is not Thomas Campbell's eye a wink of derision as it passed out into coming," is Scott's phrase in "Rob Rov." And the "Almighty dollar" is Washington

Irving's happy hit.

HANDS. Profound study has led a M. D'Arpentigny to the conclusion that hands represent three types: Those who have fingers with pointed tins are possessed of a rapid insight into things; are extra sensative and pious; impulsive. To this class belong the poets and artists. To the "square tops" belong scientific people; sensible, self-contained characters; professional men. The spadeshaped tops-thick tips, with little pads of flesh on each side of the nails-are materialists, commercial, practical, with a high. appreciation of all that tends to bodily ease and comfort. Each-finger, no matter what the kind of hand, has also one joint-that which is nearest to the palm-representing the body; another-the middle-the mind and the top, the soul. Each of these divisions corresponds with one of the types above who was assisted in his duties by a guard of soldiers or military police, at once took the whole of the passengers prisoners, and put us into a large, cold room, with sentries posted at all the doors, to prevent us from going out, where we were left shivering with cold, and looking at one another. I went towards one of the doors with visions of getting a cup of hot coffee somewhere, but this movement created such cries of indignation, not only from the man guarding the particular door that I wanted to use, but also from the sentries on other doors, and from other official or military-looking people, who, I thought, had nothing whatever to do with it, that I slunk back among my fellow-prisoners quite ashame ed of myself. Our passports were first examined, and then the bags, portmanteaus, boxes, and parcels of every description were opened. The head searcher appeared to get very angry when he found that I had a large and are prepared to accept risks by first-class number of satin scaryes, and when he came steamers and sailing vessels. to about a dozen pair of kid gloves he lecame ! perfectly furious, and jabbered and gesticulated as if he were mad. I began to think that he must have lost some gloves, and that he thought, perhaps, that mine were his. He unpacked my portmanteau and dressing-bag. which had taken me such a length of time to pack up, and in an inconceivably short space of time the floor of the dirty room was strewed over with my newest coats and most carefully made-up shirts. -He even searched my boots, and in a magnificent manner confiscated some newspapers, or parts of old newspapers, in which some of my things were rolled up. After a delay at this bitterly cold station on the Polish frontier of about two hours_in the morning, without being able to get any kind of refreshment whatever, we were hurried into the carriages as soon as the examination of baggage and passports had been finished entirely to the satisfaction of the tearchers, if not to the searched. As we proceeded on our journey. I thought that each station, as we got further into the country, looked more savage than the one before it. The lower classes were the most bizarre-looking savages I ever saw in my life, and, for the most part, moving masses of filth and mud. Completely packed up in sheep skins, with their less encased in a kind of coarse blanket bound round with thongs and cords, I could see very little of the people themselves, who, under the mass of dirty greasy covering, looked as broad as long; and in external appearance, at all ovents, they differ very little from some of the wildest nomadic tribes of this 20 per cent. enormous and half-civilized empire. I had before this never seen such a change in the inhabitants in such a short journey, and there is not a greater difference between the people of the midland counties and the inhabitants of the south of Greece, than there is between a Polish peasant and a common Prussian in the neighbourhood of Thorn, on | be returned on Insurances against fire, effected the Vistula. VAGARIES OF A STARFISH. One of the Williams' College Natural History Expedition writes a letter to the New York Post, from which the following is an extract. In going from Lyun to Nahant. we passed over that magnificent beach two made, on the Premium charged on all Insurmiles long, so well known to all Lyan and moes effected with this Office; such Return Nahant visitors, and which, all things considered, is one of the finest beaches on our Atlantic coast. Gently sloping, smooth covered with compacted, whitish sand, it is one of the finest of bathing beaches when it is covered with the tide, and one of the finest places for driving when it is bare. The horses' hoofs and the wheels, of the carriages hardly more than indent the smooth surface. so perfectly are the sands on this beach compacted together. On this long beach—the rates of Premium at the respective places. Lynn beach-we lingered, and here we reaped a rich harvest of shells which the old ocean had cast up. Here we found hivalves of various forms and sizes, spindle-shells and whelks; and now and then a starfish and a sea-urchin were strauded upon the beach, and were eagerly secured by our enthusiastic collectors. And even the delicate jelly fishes were found in all their perfection where they Had just been left by the waves and the tide. One of the starfishes, or "five-fingers," as they are often called, which was here secured, is of remarkable scientific interest, as it so completely illustrates the wonderful power which these animals have of renewing portions of their body when they have been removed.

FRONTIER

Here we found a starfish with one long! arm or finger and four very short arms, the four short ones all being of one and the same length, showing to every one acquainted with these curious animals that the starfish had once upon a time lost four of its arms simultaneously—bitten off, perhaps, by a a mouth and one arm, had reproduced four arms-now smaller, to be sure-in the places from which the four original ones had been removed. And this is what starfishes are doing all the time. No sooner do they lose an arm than another begins to grow in its place. Some kinds of star-like animals as the " anake-tailed star fishes." or brittlestars, have the power of breaking themselves in pieces, and then the portion which contains the mouth will in time become a perfect

Even some kinds of starfishes proper bave this power-one kind, at least, known as Luidia, which lives off the coast of England -and an amusing anecdote is related of one of these by that eminent, now lamented, naturalist. Professor Edward Forbes. learned Professor went a dredging for this curious starfish, Luidia, and when he had their Contents..... secured one he laid it on one of the scats in the hoat; but when he would take it to carry it home, he found that the starfish had broken itself in pieces, thus rendering it nearly worthless. Knowing that these animals are quickly quieted by being put in fresh cold water, the Professor took with him; the next time he went a-dredging, a bucketful of such water, that he might put the Luidic into i as soon as it was caught. Seeing that he had a fine one in his dredge, or net, he sand top, that by a skilful movement he might transfer the Luidia to the cold water so quickly that the animal would be in cold water before it would have time to go to pieces. But the Luidia, suspecting, for aught I know, what its intended fate was to be, immediately broke itself into many pieces, and began to disappear through the meshes of the seal .. The eyes of the fishes, you must lieved to be very imperfect.
